SPEAKING TOPICS

- COLIVING VS HOTEL
Coliving is a concept that has been emerging as a new trend, a lifestyle stemming from our ancestors, where the sense of community is established. The difference between coliving and hotels is mainly a more curated environment for specific needs. The basic functions are the same, in that individual living units are provided, but many amenities become common spaces, extending your living quarters beyond the walls of your unit.
- FUNCTIONAL AND FLEXIBLE DESIGN
Hong Kong provides designers with a very unique challenge: space. This requires designers to utilize space in a different way, providing multi-functional designs is one solution to the limited space. Through our designs, we explore various ways to deliver innovative solutions for clients, essentially increasing their perceived size of the space, fitting multiple functions within a designated area.
- COWORKING SPACES AND OPEN OFFICES
The work culture has been transforming according to technological advances. What is the right design for your office? Coworking spaces have adapted the open office model as part of the set-up, but is open office the right fit for your office? We will explore different office typologies and the best way to plan for your office renovation.
- HOSPITALITY DESIGN AND OPERATIONS
A well designed restaurant should not only look aesthetically pleasing, but should also address operational needs, OPENUU can deliver this with Kevin's expertise from his Le Cordon Bleu education, and his precious work experience with celebrity chef Ming Tsai. One key element to designing a good restaurant is taking the operation team in consideration.
- DESIGN AND BRANDING FOR RESTAURANTS
With experience in branding, designing, and operating our own restaurant Mean Noodles, and helping others with their brand. OPENUU explores how to help restaurant owners and F&B managers find their niche and brand identity, incorporating it with the interior design.

TESTIMONIAL

// I have been associated with Mr. Kevin Lim for a period of two years for one of our shopping mall renovation projects. He being the designer to help us achieve our target by coming up with a creative design that could be implemented within numerous constraints because it was a renovation project in an old shopping mall. We had a very harmonious working relationship. Mr. Lim was creative but at the same time could take commercial perspective into the design consideration. He was responsive and we managed to get the project done within a tight time frame with good result.

I have no hesitation to recommend Mr. Lim to friends for commercial interior design.

CASE STUDY

CASE STUDY 1/ AH YUNG KITCHEN

SIZE 5060 SQFT (470 SQM)

Ah Yung Kitchen balances design and operations, where the design included service stations and storage spaces for day to day operations. The design is inspired by traditional Chinese teahouse elaborated with floral begonia motifs and Chinese lantern lightings.

CASE STUDY 2/ RIL CREED

SIZE 400 SQFT (37 SQM)

All the display furniture pieces are easily movable, accompanied by three different styles of functional and flexible walls. These three flexible walls allow the client to update the visual merchandising frequently, providing variety of display formats on a neutral canvas.
